RECIPROCITY BILL PASSES.

Senate Ratifies It after Voting Down Many Amendments—When it Became Operative is a Question.

Senate passed the Reciprocity bill by a vote of fifty-three to twenty-seven. By this measure the product of the farm is put on the free list and manufactured goods retain their protection. The measure can bring no good to the farmer.

Climax of the reciprocity legislation came Saturday when the Underwood bill, making effective the Canadian compact, was pressed through its final stages in the Senate. The first McCumber amendment was defeated sixteen to sixty-four. It was designed to reduce the per cent. of duties on a wide variety of houshold articles. By a vote of twenty-three to fifty-eight the amendments of Nelson of Minnesota which places duties on grain, butter, cheese, horses, cattle and sheep, were rejected. In rapid succession the Senate voted down the amendments by Simmons of North Carolina and LaFollette's wool amendments were defeated. Cummins of Iowa had an amendment which reduced by forty per cent. the duties of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law on structural steel but it was defeated. Other LaFollette amendments were also defeated.

Just when the Canadian Reciprocity agreement will become operative, now that it has been finally ratified into law by Congress and President Taft, was a question upon which there is a division of opinion among authorities.

As agreed to, the measure contains two sections. The first sets forth the full dutiable and free list articles to be sent under the terms of the bill from this country to Canada, and the dutiable and free lists of articles sent from the Dominion to the United States.

The second section provides for free entry into the United States from Canadian provinces that do not enforce any export tax or other restrictions, shipments to the United States, of wood pulp, newsprint and other paper and paper board manufactured mainly of wood pulp and valued at not more than four cents a pound.

Senator Reed Smoot, Republican, of Utah, one of the highest authorities on the tariff in the Senate, has asserted that the first section of the bill could not take effect until it had been passed by the Canadian Parliament.

"As to section two," he said, "there is a strong opinion among senators that it will take effect on the passage of the bill by Congress, even if Canada, at the time, has taken no action on the reciprocity measure."

In the first section of the agreement is a provision setting forth that the dutiable and free lists of articles from Canada "shall take effect whenever the President of the United States shall have satisfactory evidence and shall make proclamation" that the dutiable and free lists of the United States goods sent to Canada are recognized by the Dominion.

Section two of the United States bill is a plain statute that requires no action by the President to carry it into effect.

Senator Nelson, Republican, of Minnesota, has said it is "utterly outside the scope of the reciprocity agreement."

The opinion of Senator Cummins, Republican of Iowa, was thus expressed: "The difficulty about the present arrangement is as the Senator from Minnesota has said. For some reason or other the House has segregated section two from the remainder of the bill, and it is doubtful whether it will be controlled by the provisos and the conditions of the previous part of the bill. If it is not so controlled then it is not reciprocal, and we would be in danger of the favored-nation clause."

An apparent defect in the United States bill was pointed out by some Senators. If Canada should, some day, repeal the Canadian bill, the United States law would remain in force until Congress could take action.

It was several times suggested that the bill be amended so that it would be automatically repealed in the event of the repeal of the Canadian law by the Ottowa parliament, but the general belief was that the conditions under which it might operate to the disadvantage of the United States were beyond the range of possibility.

RURAL CONDITIONS—

Social and Industrial—As Seen by A. B. Farquhar, the York Manufacturer.

The admirable address on "Rural Conditions—Social and Industrial," delivered by A. B. Farquhar, of York, at the recent conference of rural conditions, at Pennsylvania State College, has been printed in the shape of a four-page folder of convenient size.

In this address Mr. Farquhar frankly tells us that his personal recollections go back nearly seventy years, but there is not a trace of old-fogyism, nothing of the gloom of old age, in his paper. He acknowledges, as all intelligent persons must, the attractions of the city—the lure of "the lights o' London," but in it he does not see danger to the human race as a whole, nor any justification for jeremiads on impending starvation.

He is not appalled by the fact that in some sections of the country rural population is dwindling or standing still. In many cases rural laborers have left because they were not needed. There are fewer workers but far greater production. The product of the farm has not fallen off, but has increased enormously and the market places in the cities were never so bountifully stocked as now. Within his memory the value of crops has increased a hundred fold. When he was a boy wheat was cut with a sickle and threshed with flails and the houses of the people generally were lighted at night with tallow candles and of the rich with whale oil. A day's labor now will buy far more than it would then. We have not yet reached the goal; there is much yet to be done before "man to man the world o'er shall brothers be," but our progress towards the millennium, Mr. Farquhar thinks, is more rapid than ever before.

Needed legislation is referred to, legislation to remove obstructions to commerce, but the fact is emphasized that farmers' strength is not gained by anything that legislators or executives can do for him, but by what he achieves by his own right arm, by difficulties surmounted and obstacles overcome.

The most urgent needs are better facilities for agricultural education, more perfect knowledge of seeds and soils, the conservation of forests and of trees, the purification of the water supply, the prevention of the fearful waste in drink with all the cost of crime that drink brings with it; the waste of money, of fibre, of body, mind and soul, resulting from the defiance of the laws of health and especially of sex hygiene.

This is merely a glance at a few of the points made by Mr. Farquhar, whose address should be read by every Pennsylvanian.

RESTRICTIONS FOR TEACHERS.

Must Not Drink or Use Drugs, Says School Code.

It may be well for school teachers of the county to give themselves a trial to see whether they can break off their tobacco habits, as there is a question whether the tobacco using teacher will be eligible for election with the new school code in effect. Also the teacher who likes to indulge in his occasional glass of beer may find himself ineligible as a public school instructor unless he swears off and jumps aboard the water wagon.

The new school law has the following new section: "No teacher's certificate shall be granted to any person who has not submitted upon a blank furnished by the superintendent of public instruction, a certificate from a physician legally qualified to practice medicine in this commonwealth, setting forth that said applicant is neither mentally nor physically disqualified by reason of tuberculosis, or any other chronic or acute defect, from successful performance of the duties of a teacher, nor to any person, who has not a good moral character, or who is in the habit of using opium or other narcotic drugs, in any form or any intoxicating drinks as a beverage."

It is likely that the expression, "narcotic drugs," may be applied to tobacco users. Tobacco is surely a narcotic, but whether it is a narcotic drug is to be settled along the same line as pure food, or rather adulterations, are settled.

PRIDE OF THE MASONS.

Fraternity Home Now Being Built at Elizabethtown.

The Masonic fraternity of this section is greatly interested in the magnificent new Masonic home, which is now under construction at Elizabethtown. The orphanage and home for the aged and infirm Masons to be erected at Elizabethtown, plans for which have been drawn and the contracts awarded, is the greatest project of its kind ever attempted by an organization. A total of 987 acres for which $136,707,91 was paid, has been secured and on this site will be erected a group of buildings at a cost of $1,000,000.

The location of the site for the new home is within reach of 50,000 Masons, and but two hours' ride from the headquarters of the Masonic fraternity of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia. Trains to the number of thirty-four pass east and west daily and when completed not only will the home be an ideal structure and well equipped for the use intended, but it will be the handsomest, best located fraternity home in the United States.

Child Thrown From Horse.

Last Wednesday, Mary, aged seven and one-half years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wert, of near Tusseyville, was seriously injured by being thrown from a horse. The child was unconscious for several hours, from an injury on the temple, but at present she is getting along nicely.

When the team on the day named reached the barn the little girl climbed onto one of the horses, as she had done before, to ride him to the watering trough. The animal took fright and ran, and in some manner the child became entangled in the harness, and when thrown from the horse one of her feet caught in the lines. For a time she was suspended while the horse was running, but then her body dropped low enough that her head struck the ground, and finally the trap that caught her loosened, leaving her drop by the side of the horse. The injuries, as noted above, were quite serious.

Chairman Kimport Did Right.

County Chairman A. B. Kimport is to be commended for having voted with the reorganizers, thus having honestly represented the large majority of the Democratic voters in Centre county.

The Reporter does not believe that all the followers of the old organization were politically dishonest, but their management of affairs in the state brought such disaster last fall that it would now be becoming to them to step aside and follow Chairman Guthrie, and the majority of the county committeemen.

Then, mind you, we have a county ticket to elect, and must have peace in the county. Peace can only be had when one is willing to yield to the wishes of the majority. That is a Democratic spirit.

LOCALS

Ike Berney, the clothier, closed his store in Centre Hall on Monday.

Misses Elizabeth Geary and Flossie Huston, of Newport, were guest of the formers' brother, Frank P. Geary, in Centre Hall, for a week.

Kathryn Allison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archey Allison, of Bellefonte, is with her aunt, Mrs. Lillie Alexander in Centre Hall.

Guy W. Jacobs is at present in Chicago where he is conducting a test in the interest of the York Manufacturing Co., an ice plant concern in whose employ he has been for the past year.

The first election held in the new borough of Burnham was non-political. All shades of political parties were represented on the ticket, but parties were not indicated. That sounds very good for Burnham. R. L. Edward was elected chief burgess.

S. Ward Gramley, of the Millheim Banking Company, accompanied by Mrs. Gramley and her daughter, and Mrs. A. Walter, came to Centre Hall Friday evening in a machine, and took home with them H. C. Breon, of the firm of H. C. Breon & Co., agents for the Ford machines.

Farm wagons of every description will be found in our ware houses. Come and look them over. They are made of the best material obtainable, are neatly built and ironed; well painted, and run like a top not like a log.—J. H. and S. E. Weber, Centre Hall and Oak Hall Station.

Care of poultry requires constant watchfulness, and leaves those engaged in the business little time for recreation or avocations, yet Earl Lutz, who has in charge the station-end of the poultry business conducted by C. D. Bartholomew, found time to call around at the Reporter office for the express purpose of advancing his subscription to this paper.

DEATHS.

Sunday of last week Mrs. Harry Sunday, aged about twenty-five years, died very suddenly at her home at Pine Grove Mills, after giving birth to a child. Deceased was a daughter of W. H. Goss and from childhood was a member of the Lutheran church, having for several years sung in the choir of that church. Surviving are her parents, her husband, two children and two brothers and one sister viz: Samuel Goss, of Reading; William Goss, of Tyrone, and Elsie Goss, at home. The funeral was held the following Wednesday morning.

After having suffered for two years from cancer, Mrs. Martin Beck died at her home at Howard Thursday afternoon, 13 inst, at the age of sixty-seven years. About eight years ago Mr. and Mrs. Beck moved from Snydertown to Howard, the former village having been their place of residence for many years. Besides her husband, three aged brothers living in the west survive. Interment was made at Snydertown, and funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. Fleck.

On the twelfth of this month, William B. Watson died at his home in Williamsport, at the age of sixty-three years. He was born in Nittany Valley, this county, and during his youth spent much of his time at sea. Miss Frances Watson, a sister, survives.

At the home of her parents in Bellefonte, Julia F. Schad, died Sunday morning of last week. Interment was made the next day in the family plot at the Union cemetery.

Changes in Game Laws.

Several important changes were made in the game law by the last legislature. In most instances the season has been changed as noted below, from October 15 to November 1, with an extension of two weeks at the end of the season.

Hungarian quail (closed for two years) may now be killed. Five in one day, twenty in one week and thirty in one season. October 15 to November 15.

For quail commonly called Virginia partridge the season, which formerly began on October 15 now does not open until November 1, closing December 15.

For wild turkeys the season opens on November 1, closing December 15. Formerly the season opened October 15 and closed November 15. One in a day and two in a season.

Squirrel, fox, black or gray—the season under the new law extends from November 1 to December 15. Six of the combined kinds in one day.

For English, Mongolian, Chinese Ringneck pheasants the season, which formerly began on October 15, under the new law will not open until November 1, closing on December 15. Ten in one day, twenty in one week and fifty in one season.

Fire at Reedsville.

During an electrical storm on Friday morning a bolt struck the carriage manufacturing buildings of the firm of George B. and Samuel T. Wagoner, in Reedsville, and totally consumed them. For a time a large portion of the business section of the town was threatened. The water lacked pressure and the hose length to combat the flames, necessitating the drafting of a portion of the Lewistown fire company. The residences of D. W. Reynolds and George Wagoner, on the opposite side of the street, were on fire. The milling establishment of Rice Brothers, and the Rider opera house at one stage were apparently doomed to destruction. The heavy rain that had just fallen, thoroughly wetting the exposed portions of the buildings, had much to do with preventing the spread of the flames.

The loss to the Wagoner brothers is $2500, with no insurance.

The annual Poorman family reunion will be held in Kohlbreaker's grove, at Milesburg, on Saturday, August 19.

The fifth annual reunion of the Crust-Clark clan will be held at Hunter's park August 26. Everybody invited.

Autos are used by many rural mail carriers. The trips are made much quicker, which pleases the patrons along the line.

Misses Bertha Strohmeier and Bessie Breon spent a day with Miss Leila Huyett, at Lei Mir, last week. Before returning home Miss Breon visited friends at State College.

A. E. Kerlin and son William, proprietors of the Grand View Poultry Farm, last Thursday left for Philadelphia. They expect to visit New York City, Atlantic City and other points in New Jersey.

Among the Reporter's callers the latter part of last week was George W. Potter, who is tenant on the Brockerhoff farm, south of Old Fort. He just moved there last spring from Ferguson township, and says he has nothing to regret for having done so.

After discharging his duties faithfully as an instructor in the Bellefonte High School for about two and one-half years, Prof Charles H. Auman, has resigned his position as principal and accepted a similar position in the Danville High School at a salary of $1200.

If you have never tried a New Idea manure spreader you are unable to appreciate its superior qualities over other spreaders. Its light draft is a strong point, and then it spreads more evenly than any other manure spreader made.—J. H. and S. E. Weber, Centre Hall and Oak Hall Station.

Thomas Lingle, of Cherokee, Iowa, son of the late Bruce S. Lingle, is in the east and is among relatives in and about Centre Hall. He is a grandson of Mrs. Elizabeth Lingle, with whom he spends much of his time. The young man just graduated from the High School in his home town, and he may possibly continue his studies by entering State or some other college.

Mr. and Mrs. P. McManus, of Harrisburg, arrived in Centre Hall Monday of last week and were met at the station by Mr. and Mrs. William Bower, of near Tusseyville, who escorted them to their home. Mrs. McManus is a sister to Mrs. Bower and since her husband is in the employ of the Penney their trips to Centre county are not very frequent. They returned to their home in Harrisburg on Friday.

A festival and bazar will be held in Boal Hall, at Boalsburg, Saturday, August 5th, by the Lutheran Sunday-school of Boalsburg. Ice cream, cake, fruit, and other delicacies will be served in the best of style. In the afternoon a baseball game between Boalsburg and Milesburg will take place, while in the evening plenty of music will be furnished to enliven the occasion. The proceeds will be used for the purpose of paying toward the light plant recently installed in the church.

The latest snake story from the Brisbin & Company lumber camp is told by D. W. Sweetwood, sawyer. He was sitting on a box eating his noon day meal, and had no idea that a rattle snake was in his hat or under the box. The lunch was finished, and then a brief rest was disturbed by the sound of a rattler, and in less time that it takes to tell of it a strapping big rattler crawled from under the box and passed between Sawyer Sweetwood's feet. Manager Brisbin declares the snake had called to get a job and should not have been killed.

Just how far a newspaper should go concerning a man's private affairs is a question. Cameron Stone, a young Mercersburg negro, slashed his throat with a razor some weeks ago, and the papers said that Cameron was trying to take his life. The stories printed about him caused Cameron to take his pen and write a few lines. He informed the editor that if he wanted to cut his own throat, that was his own business, and as for there being a woman in the case, that was none of the editor's affair, either. Cameron holds that if there is one thing a man really owns, it is his own anatomy, and if he desires to relieve himself of some superfluous blood, there is no reason why it should be published to the world.

SAVING AND EARNING.

A Chicago millionaire came to this country in 1871, with 12 cents in his pocket. The other day, referring to it, he said he laid down this rule: "Never to be out of work and never to spend as much as you earn." It was that rule that made him a millionaire, and that is the kind of millionaire that is entitled to honor. His idea is that it is good for a man to save, for economy is a healthy habit, says the Ohio State Journal. As a rule men can live on half they spend, have better health, and can do more work. Let a man sit down and make a list of what he needs, not scantily but bountifully, and he will be surprised how many things he can cut out and yet keep body and mind in fine condition. There are many things that one buys that are the objects of his fancy. He sees them and wants them; if he didn't see them he wouldn't want them. We once heard of a man who would not go to market because he said, he wanted to buy everything, and succeeded in buying much he did not need. It is possible to live well on meals that average only 10 cents per capita. In a school on the west side they do it, and that little club of teachers are hearty and happy as robins in a cherry tree. We must get out of the idea that great chunks of heavy food are required for energy. As a rule they reduce it.

The bureau of animal industry has devised what appears to a be a breakfast food for horses, with the purpose to reduce the high cost of their living. This substitute for oats is composed of cocoanut and peanut meals and it can be produced for $15 less a ton than whole oats cost. It appears that the horses experimented with did not take eagerly to the new ration at first; quite as human beings used to find their breakfast foods cloggy until a taste was expressly cultivated. The horses had to get the habit without the encouragement which a liberal application of cream and sugar affords the bipeds. In due time, however, the animals recovered their form on the novel diet. The ration must be unquestionably justified, nevertheless, before it can be commended to those who truly love a horse. It is not the animal's fault that oats have become a luxury. Human beings have been induced to eat its natural fodder in enormous quantities and that is the reason.

A German expedition which went to German East Africa to search for dinosaurian remains reports the discovery of bones larger than any heretofore exhumed in other parts of the world. One specimen which has been secured is a humerus 6 feet 10½ inches in length. This would indicate a thigh bone of nine feet. Heretofore the diplodoccus has been considered the great-granddaddy of colossal land animals of all times. But the length of the humerus of the diplodocccus was only three feet eleven inches. It is very safe to say of the prehistoric geological ages that "there were giants in those days."

A telephone has been installed near the pulpit of a Kansas church to enable the congregation to hear the sermon without going to church. However, it is a difficult feat to sleep and hold a receiver to one's ear at the same time.

The American bullfrog is to be introduced into Japan by a young Japanese who was graduated from an American agricultural college this year. Choruses of large, healthy American frogs, bellowing "To-go! To-go!" from the marshes should add much to the charm of Japanese life and strengthen the ties between the two countries.

Still another doctor is added to the list of those who are being sued for sewing up various articles in the bodies of their patients operated upon. In this last case it is forceps. This sort of thing is apt to make patients nervous over the prospect of having a junk department added to the original plan of their interior economy.

It is pointed out that there is no danger of overdoing the apple raising business, as the frequent crop failures keep down the production. Yet this does not seem to be a good argument to address to prospective but hesitating investors.

CONTRIBUTION TO HELP HARRISON

Sugar Trust Gave $10,000 to Campaign Fund.

PIONEER OF AMERICAN TRUST

John E. Parsons, Former Attorney for the Company, Before House Investigating Committee ---Proud of It.

New York.—The American Sugar Refining Company contributed $10,000 to help Benjamin Harrison in one of his campaigns for the presidency against Grover Cleveland. The contribution was told of by John E. Parsons, former attorney for the company, in his testimony before the Congressional committee which is investigating the affairs of the so-called trust. He could not remember whether it was the first or the second Harrison campaign.

Mr. Parsons frankly boasted that he was "the pioneer in the formation of the American trust," and was proud of it, but scouted the idea that the Sugar Trust constituted a monopoly such as the Standard Oil or American Tobacco Companies.

The committee spent the afternoon visiting several sugar refineries in this vicinity, and held informal conferences with many superintendents, but took no testimony.

Mr. Parsons opposed a Federal incorporation law for local corporations, although he said such a law might be beneficial for public service corporations. He opposed the law which permits the government to examine the books, question the officers and obtain the secrets of a corporation.

"I strongly condemn the modern theory of publicity of corporation affairs," he said. "It is unjust to the American citizen that he should be compelled to make his private affairs public."

In reply to questions by Mr. Sulzer, Mr. Parsons repudiated the many statements which have been made that H. O. Havemeyer was the one power in the sugar trust and that the board of directors did as he bade.

I know personally that Mr. Havemeyer consulted the board in important matters. Different members frequently differed with him. They discussed the matters. Sometimes Mr. Havemeyer yielded; at other times the members yielded.

ONLY MEN AT FUNERAL

Farmer Has Hated Woman Since His Wife Deserted Him.

Evansville, Ind. — Becoming a woman-hater because, as he said, his wife deserted him at Louisville, Ky., after inducing him to assign half his property to her, John Steller, 67 years old, stipulated in his will that none but men should attend his funeral. The man's wish was followed at his funeral Saturday. Steller willed all his property, including a large farm and considerable savings, to Joe Haas, a grocer, who befriended him in his last illness.

Mrs. Luke Lea Out of Danger.

Denver.—Mrs. Luke Lea, wife of United States Senator Lea, of Tennessee, who was rushed to Denver last week from Deer Park, Md., while she was suffering from a relapse following an operation, is improving rapidly and is now considered out of danger.

Senator Lea, who submitted to a transfusion of a quart of blood from his own veins in an effort to save the life of Mrs. Lea, will leave in a few days for their home in Nashville.

Explains Corporation Commission.

Washington.—Senator Newlands explained the provisions of his Corporation Commission Bill to the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce. He contended that the proposed commission would be as useful in the regulation of miscellaneous corporations as is the Interstate Commerce Commission in regulating railroads. The bill does not empower the commission to fix prices.

$2,500 for Forest Fire Victims.

Washington.—The American Red Cross contributed $2,500 to the relief of the forest fire sufferers in Ontario, Canada, and a similar amount for the assistance of those deprived of their means of livelihood by the recent woodland fires in Michigan. This money was given by the Minnesota Red Cross branch and represents a surplus of contributions procured last year during the great forest fires of the Northwest.

Shortage in Honey.

Toronto, Ont.—Dealers in honey declare that the drouth of June and early July has caused a shortage of over 1,000,000 pounds in Ontario's harvest from the hives. The practical failure of small flowering field crops is given as the cause. The average yield a year ago, according to the records of the Beekeepers' Association, was 58.3 pounds per colony, while this year's will be below 50, or a total shortage of over 1,000,000 pounds.

WARSHIPS HURRIED TO HAITI

Cape Haitien in the Hands of Revolutionists--Will Protect Americans

Washington.—With only one little gunboat in the waters of Haiti to safeguard American interests, threatened by a revolution that seems to be spreading through the republic, the Navy Department is making a strenuous endeavor to rush adequate protection to the scene.

The fast scout cruiser Chester was detached from the mimic war in Long Island sound and ordered to the theater of real strife in Haiti. The trip will be made in about four days. The Des Moines has left Boston for Port au Prince. Her voyage will consume a week. The Peoria is expected to leave San Juan, P. R., for Fort Liberte. With the Petrel now at Gonaives, the United States in the course of a week will have four warships surrounding the little republic.

Both the State and Navy Departments are without official advices as to developments in the situation. The Petrel has been cut off from communication. She is not equipped with wireless, and the port of Gonaives has been captured and isolated by the revolutionists.

REFUGE FOR AMERICANS

They Are Given Temporary Protection on a Yacht.

Cape Haitien.—Cape Hatien is in the hands of the revolutionists and the sole protection of Americans and other foreigners at this port is an American yacht. The United States gunboat Petrel sailed from here several hours previous to the arrival of the yacht, leaving American interests unprotected, and when the yacht came into the harbor her owner, Mr. Dick, found the town in a state of semi-anarchy. The insurgents were rapidly approaching and President Simon and his troops had left Fort Liberte for Port au Prince.

There were rumors also that the cruiser Antonie Simon was on her way to bombard some of the ports. As is customary under such circumstances, most of the residents took sides with the revolutionists and soon the authorities were unable to check the disorders. Mr. Dick notified the officials that he would not permit any bombardment by Haitien warships and would protect the foreigners.

At night fighting broke out in the streets. The searchlight of the yacht was kept playing on the house in which the Americans who were brought in from working on the railroad had collected with their wives. The civic authorities aided in this work.

At daybreak, however, the government was overthrown, the revolutionists had occupied the town and the streets were filled with excited men shooting at random. All the American women were taken aboard the yacht, while the foreign consulates were filled with refugees.

INSURANCE SECRETS BARED

Homeless Lad as President of Two Concerns---Promoters Put on Trial.

Philadelphia.—At a hearing here of three officials of 14 "mutual fire insurance companies" of this city on the charge of operating fraudulent concerns, a 19-year-old boy testified that he had been picked off the street and made president of two of the concerns and secretary of a third at a total salary of $5 a week. The witness, Herman S. Robinson, said he was homeless when hired to run errands. He was told he must "dress up" and said that one of the defendants had outfitted him at a clothing store. At the end of the hearing, the three officials, David Balaity, Jacob Malschick and Charles Weinberg, were held under bail for trial.

Robinson testified he knew he had been made president, but thought it was only a matter of form. He said that the janitor of an office building in which the 14 companies were operated from the same room, was also made president of one of the concerns. Robinson further testified that he had presided at directors' meetings of his companies, but had no idea of what was done.

"I always read a newspaper or went to sleep. Balaity did all the talking," he said.

Earnest K. Muller, a solicitor employed by two of the concerns which the state insurance department charges were all controlled by the same principals, testified that while he was connected with the concerns new ones were organized with a total "fake" capitalization of $1,560,000. The names of the alleged subscribers, he said, were taken from the city directory.

Harry S. Thiel, another solicitor, testified that "agents of the companies got 50 per cent. on all business they wrote and inspectors 10 per cent. of all business written by those under them."

"The money came in fast," he testified. "Balaity and Malschick both had tin boxes in which they kept the cash and the boxes were often full."

The office of the concerns was recently raided. The concerns, it is charged, wrote fire insurance in all parts of the country and it is claimed their total receipts were $27,000 a month.

FEDERAL CONTROL SAYS WICKERSHAM

Would Extend it Over All Great Industries.

A PLAN TO CONTROL PRICES.

Attorney General Declares That a Government Commission Should Regulate All Industrial Corporations.

Duluth.—Attorney General Wickersham, before the Minnesota State Bar Association here, took an advanced stand on the further Federal regulation of corporations and declared that a government commission to regulate great industrial organizations in the same way that the Interstate Commerce Commission regulate railways, was certainly most desirable and that it might be absolutely necessary. Mr. Wickersham's speech was little short of sensational in many of its features. He declared that it was a matter of serious consideration whether it would be practical to give to the proposed interstate corporation commission the power to fix prices. To do this in theory would simply require an extension of the principle by which the Interstate Commerce Commission controls the rates on railroads.

The law of supply and demand,

GEORGE W. WICKERSHAM
Attorney General.

Mr. Wickersham said, no longer controls prices in the United States. For years, he declared, the prices in all the great staple industries have been fixed by an agreement between the principal producers and not by a normal play of free competition. An interstate commission, the Attorney Generals added, would prevent violations of the Anti-Trust Act and aid business men to maintain a continued status of harmony with the requirements of the law.

Many of Mr. Wickersham's declarations were the most radical he has made since his entrance into official life. With the weight of an administration officer behind them, his remarks made a deep impression. There was nothing in the speech, however; to indicate how far the Attorney General reflected the views of President Taft. On several occasions in the past, however, he has been regarded as a spokesman for the administration.

Mr. Wickersham said:

"If Congress should enact that no corporation engaged in interstate commerce shall hereafter acquire any stock of any other corporation so engaged, and that unless all such corporations should dispose of all stocks held by them in other corporations engaged in interstate commerce within some specified period, they should be prohibited from carrying on interstate commerce until they did so dispose of such stocks, the ax would indeed be laid at the root of the trust evil; but justice to the innocent holders of securities issued to the public, based on pledged stocks acquired, and held pursuant to express legal authority, would require consideration to be given to their case, and such exceptions to be made from the prohibition as might be necessary to their protection. These necessary acts of justice might seriously interfere with the enactment of legislation effective to the accomplishment of the main purpose in view."

Probe Magazine Postage.

New York.—The special commission authorized to look into and report on the merits of the magazine postage controversy met here under the presidency of Justice Hughes, the chairman of the commission. The session was devoted to preliminaries and to the consideration of some plan of action. Extensive hearings will be held, and it is expected that many prominent railroad officials will be asked to testify.

ALL OVER THE STATE

TOLD IN SHORT ORDER

Greensburg.—Radebaugh tunnel, the longest tunned on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad with the single exception of the Gallitzin tunnel, is doomed. The tunnel started to cave in on Friday and all efforts of the workmen to save the immense arch as they proceed are fruitless. The tunnel was built twelve years ago and was considered one of the finest pieces of masonry on the road. It is a mile in length.

Chester. — Dominick Fogoccio, a trackwalker, found the headless body of a man along the Pennsylvania Railroad in Eddystone. Deputy Coroner Drewes found a letter in the pockets of the clothing addressed to Bernhardt Glaser, Boardwalk, Atlantic City. The letter was signed, "From Your Brother, Sigmund Glaser," which is supposed to be the name of the dead man.

Reading. — Coroner Wagner and several physicians, in the presence of the local authorities, made a post-mortem examination on the body of Walter J. Pianka, who was found shot to death in a field at West Reading several days ago, and reported a strong tendency to a suicide theory.

Dubois.—Philip Dusch, a resident of Brady Township, died thirty minutes after being stung by a honey bee. Mr. Dusch went out to place a cap on a hive, and was heard to call. His wife rushed to his side in time to see him fall. Before dying Dusch said he had been stung only once on the point of the jaw. He was sixty-two years old.

Pittsburg.—Workmen engaged in clearing away the wreck of a Baltimore and Ohio freight train at Bryant, found the body of Tony Fleischner, of Etna, Pa., under a mass of debris. Four bodies were taken out of the wreckage soon after the accident, and Samuel Mattingly, of Johnstown, later died in a local hospital.

Allentown. — Mrs. Eve Hankle, one of the famous "Adam and Eve" twins, died at Northampton at the age of eighty-eight years. She was the twin sister of Adam Yehl and leaves one daughter, fourteen grandchildren, thirty-three great-grandchildren and thirteen great-great-grandchildren.

Allentown.—Ever since he got a hard bump in a Muhlenberg football game last fall, Christopher J. Quinn, catcher for the Temperance baseball team suffered from a lame arm. He went to a doctor Wednesday, who found a dislocated shoulder. The marvel is he could throw at all. The dislocation was successfully reduced.

Chester.—Miss Mary L. Morrow, a school teacher, has entered a claim for damages of $223 against the city, sustained by stepping into an excavation on Madison street one dark night. Miss Morrow wrenched her hip and one foot and has been lame since the accident.

Allentown.—After a fight that lasted more than a year Allentown City Councils bought an auto for the fire chief. A total of fifteen hundred dollars will be available, a stranger contributing $420 to the appropriation of $1230.

Shippensburg.—While working a spirited team of colts in a hay rake, James C. Noaker, aged fifty-five, a well known Walnut Bottom merchant, was instantly killed. The animals ran off, throwing him violently to the ground and breaking his neck.

Reading.—A coach horse, valued at two hundred and fifty dollars and two valuable bull dogs owned by Mrs. Ella E. Richards, of this city, were mysteriously poisoned by unknown parties and all three died.

Lansford.—Real estate here commands higher prices than in any other town in the county, some of the choicest building lots selling at $400 per foot front. The town has almost doubled itself within the past ten years.

Somerset.—While playing soldier, Talmadge, six-year-old son of Court Stenographer J. J. Walter, was perhaps fatally injured by a bullet from a small rifle in the hands of six-year-old Daniel Saylor, Jr.

Hightstown.—Simmons H. Dey, former Councilman of this place who tried to commit suicide by cutting his troat with a butcher knife and was later found by his daughter, died from loss of so much blood.

Pennington.—Charles O. Goodhart, a well known man of this community, died suddenly at his home as a result of taking an overdose of laudanum.

Reading.—The Pennsylvania Paper Box Manufacturers' Association held a two days' business session here. About one hundred delegates were present. Reports submitted show an increased demand for paper boxes, indicating better business in commodities which use the products of the association.

Marietta. — Henry Hulsinger, eighty-five years old, one of Maytown's pioneer residents, is dead. He remembered when Lafayette rode through there and he shook hands with him.

SYNOPSIS.

Count di Rosini, the Italian ambassador, is at dinner with diplomats in the national capital when a messenger brings a note directing him to come to the embassy at once. Here a beautiful young woman asks that she be given a ticket to the embassy ball. The ticket is made out in the name of Miss Isabel Thorne. Chief Campbell of the secret service, and Mr. Grimm, his head detective, are warned that a plot of the Latin races against the English speaking races is brewing in Washington, and Grimm goes to the state ball for information. In a conservatory his attention is called to Miss Isabel Thorne, who with her companion, soon disappears. A revolver shot is heard and Campbell and Grimm hasten down the hall to find that Senor Alvarez of the Mexican legation, has been shot. A woman did it, and Grimm is assured it was Miss Thorne. He visits her, demanding knowledge of the affair, and there arrests a man named Pietro Petrozinni. Miss Thorne visits an old man, Luigi, apparently a bomb maker, and they speak of a wonderful experiment. Fifty thousand dollars in gold is stolen from the office of Senor Rodriguez, the minister from Venezuela. While detectives are investigating the robbery Miss Thorne appears as a guest of the legation.

CHAPTER X.

A Safe Opening.

Together they entered the adjoining room, which was small compared to the one they had just left. Senor Rodriguez used it as a private office. His desk was on their right between two windows overlooking the same pleasant little garden which was visible from the suite of tiny drawing-rooms farther along. The safe, a formidable looking receptacle of black enameled steel, stood at their left, closed and locked. The remaining wall space of the room was given over to oak cabinets, evidently a storage place for the less important legation papers.

"Has any one besides yourself been in this room today?" Mr. Grimm inquired.

"Not a soul, Senor," was the reply.

Mr. Grimm went over and examined the windows. They were both locked inside; and there were no marks of any sort on the sills.

"They are just as I left them last night," explained Senor Rodriguez. "I have not touched them today."

"And there's only one door," mused Mr. Grimm, meaning that by which they had entered. "So it would appear that whoever was here last night entered through that room. Very well."

He walked around the room once, opening and shutting the doors of the cabinets as he passed, and finally paused in front of the safe. A brief examination of the nickeled dial and handle and of the enameled edges of the heavy doors satisfied him that no force had been employed—the safe had merely been unlocked. Whereupon he sat himself down, cross-legged on the floor, in front of it.

"What are the first and second figures of the combination?" he asked.

"Thirty-six, then back to ten."

Mr. Grimm set the dial at thirty-six, and then, with his ear pressed closely against the polished door, turned the dial slowly back. Senor Rodriguez stood looking on helplessly, but none the less intently. The pointer read ten, then nine, eight, seven, five. Mr. Grimm gazed at it thoughtfully, after which he did it all over again, placidly and without haste.

"Now, we'll look inside, please," he requested, rising.

Senor Rodriguez unlocked the safe the while Mr. Grimm respectfully turned his eyes away, then pulled the door wide open. The books had been piled one on top of another and thrust into various pigeon holes at the top. Mr. Grimm understood that this disorder was the result of making room at the bottom for the bulk of gold, and asked no questions. Instead, he sat down upon the floor again.

"The lock on this private compartment at the top is broken," he remarked after a moment.

"Si, Senor," the diplomatist agreed. "Evidently the robbers were not content with only fifty thousand dollars in gold—they imagined that something else of value was hidden there."

"Was there?" asked Mr. Grimm naively. He didn't look around.

"Nothing of monetary value," the senor explained. "There were some important state papers in there—they are there yet—but no money."

"None of the papers was stolen?"

"No, Senor. There were only nine packets—they are there yet."

"Contents all right?"

"Yes. I personally looked them over."

Mr. Grimm drew out the packets of papers, one by one. They were all unsealed save the last. When he reached for that, Senor Rodriguez made a quick, involuntary motion toward it with his hand.

"This one's sealed," commented Mr. Grimm. "It doesn't happen that you opened it and sealed it again?"

Senor Rodriguez stood staring at him blankly for a moment, then some sudden apprehension was aroused, for a startled look came into his eyes, and again he reached for the packet.

"Dios mio!" he exclaimed, "let me see, Senor."

"Going to open it?" asked Mr. Grimm.

"Yes, Senor. I had not thought of it before."

Mr. Grimm rose and walked over to the window where the light was better. He scrutinized the sealed packet closely. There were three red splotches of wax upon it, each impressed with the legation seal; the envelope was without marks otherwise. He turned and twisted it aimlessly, and peered curiously at the various seals, after which he handed it to the frankly impatient diplomatist.

Senor Rodriguez opened it, with nervous, twitching fingers. Mr. Grimm had turned toward the safe again, but he heard the crackle of parchment as some document was drawn out of the envelope, and then came a deep sigh of relief. Having satisfied his sudden fears for the safety of the paper, whatever it was, the senor placed it in another envelope and sealed it again with elaborate care. Mr. Grimm dropped into the swivel chair at the desk.

"Senor," he inquired pleasantly, "your daughter and Miss Thorne were in this room yesterday afternoon?"

"Yes," replied the diplomatist as if surprised at the question.

"What time, please?"

"About three o'clock. They were going out driving. Why?"

"And just where, please, did you find that handkerchief?" continued Mr. Grimm.

"Handkerchief?" repeated the diplomatist. "You mean Miss Thorne's handkerchief?" He paused and regarded Mr. Grimm keenly. "Senor, what am I to understand from that question?"

"It was plain enough," replied Mr. Grimm. "Where did you find that handkerchief?" There was silence for an instant. "In this room?"

"Yes," replied Senor Rodriguez at last.

"Near the safe?" Mr. Grimm persisted.

"Yes," came the slow reply, again. "Just here," and he indicated a spot a little to the left of the safe.

"And when did you find it? Yesterday afternoon? Last night? This morning?"

"This morning," and without any apparent reason the diplomatist's face turned deathly white.

"But, Senor—Senor, you are mistaken! There can be nothing—! A woman! Two hundred pounds of gold! Senor!"

Mr. Grimm was still pleasant about it; his curiosity was absolutely impersonal; his eyes, grown listless again, were turned straight into the other's face.

"If that handkerchief had been there last night, Senor," he resumed quietly, "wouldn't you have noticed it when you placed the gold in the safe?"

Senor Rodriguez stared at him a long time.

"I don't know," he said, at last. He dropped back into a chair with his face in his hands. "Senor," he burst out suddenly, impetuously, after a moment, "if the gold is not recovered I am ruined. You understand that better than I can tell you. It's the kind of thing that could not be explained to my government." He rose suddenly and faced the impassive young man, with merciless determination in his face. "You must find that gold, Senor," he said.

"No matter who may be—who may suffer?" inquired Mr. Grimm.

"Find the gold, Senor!"

"Very well," commented Mr. Grimm, without moving. "Do me the favor, please, to regain possession of the handkerchief you just returned to Miss Thorne, and to send to me here your secretary, Senor Diaz, and your servants, one by one. I shall question them alone. No, don't be alarmed. Unless they know of the robbery they shall get no inkling of it from me. First, be good enough to replace the packet in the safe, and lock it."

Senor Rodriguez replaced the packet without question, afterward locking the door, then went out. A moment later Senor Diaz appeared. He remained with Mr. Grimm for just eight minutes. Senor Rodriguez entered again as his secretary passed on, and laid a lace handkerchief on the desk. Mr. Grimm stared at it curiously for a long time.

"It's the same handkerchief?"

"Si, Senor."

"There's no doubt whatever about it?"

"No, Senor, I got it by—!"

"It's of no consequence," interrupted Mr. Grimm. "Now the servants, please—the men first."

The first of the men servants was in the room two minutes; the second—the butler—was there five minutes; one of the women was not questioned at all; the other remained ten minutes. Mr. Grimm followed her into the hall; Senor Rodriguez stood there helpless, impatient.

"Well?" he demanded eagerly.

"I'm going out a little while," replied Mr. Grimm placidly. "No one has even an intimation of the affair—please keep the matter absolutely to yourself until I return."

That was all. The door opened and closed, and he was gone.

At the end of an hour he returned, passed on through to the diplomatist's private office, sat down in front of the locked safe again, and set the dial at thirty-six. Senor Rodriguez looked on, astonished, as Mr. Grimm pressed the soft rubber sounder of a stethoscope against the safe door and began turning the dial back toward ten, slowly, slowly. Thirty-five minutes later the lock clicked. Mr. Grimm rose, turned the handle, and pulled the safe door open.

"That's how it was done," he explained to the amazed diplomatist. "And now, please, have a servant hand my card to Miss Thorne."

CHAPTER XI.

The Lace Handkerchief.

Still wearing the graceful, filmy morning gown, with an added touch of scarlet in her hair—a single red rose—Miss Thorne came into the drawing-room where Mr. Grimm sat waiting. There was curiosity in her manner, thinly veiled, but the haunting smile still lingered about her lips. Mr. Grimm bowed low, and placed a chair for her, after which he stood for a time staring down at one slim, white hand at rest on the arm of the seat. At last, he, too sat down.

"I believe," he said slowly, without preliminaries, "this is your handkerchief?"

He offered the lacy trifle, odd in design, unique in workmanship, obviously of foreign texture, and she accepted it.

"Yes," she agreed readily, "I must have dropped it again."

"That is the one handed to you by Senor Rodriguez," Mr. Grimm told her. "I think you said you lost it in his office yesterday afternoon?"

"Yes?" She nodded inquiringly.

"It may interest you to know that Senor Rodriguez's butler positively identifies it as one he restored to you twice at dinner last evening, between seven and nine o'clock," Mr. Grimm went on dispassionately.

"Indeed!" exclaimed Miss Thorne.

"The senor identifies it as one he found this morning in his office." Mr. Grimm explained obligingly. "During the night fifty thousand dollars in gold were stolen from his safe."

Miss Thorne sat motionless, waiting.

"All this means—what?" she inquired, at length.

"I'll trouble you, please, to return the money," requested Mr. Grimm courteously. "No reason appears why you should have taken it. But I'm not seeking reasons, nor am I seeking disagreeable publicity—only the money."

"It seems to me you attach undue importance to the handkerchief," she objected.

"That's a matter of opinion," Mr. Grimm remarked. "It would be useless, even tedious, to attempt to disprove a burglar theory, but against it is the difficulty of entrance, the weight of the gold, the ingenious method of opening the safe, and the assumption that not more than six persons knew the money was in the safe; while a person in the house might have learned it in any of a dozen ways. And, in addition, is the fact that the handkerchief is odd, therefore noticeable. A lace expert assures me there's probably not another like it in the world."

He stopped. Miss Thorne's eyes sparkled and a smile seemed to be tugging at the corners of her mouth. She spread out the handkerchief on her knees.

"You could identify this again, of course?" she queried.

"Yes."

She thoughtfully crumpled up the bit of lace in both hands, then opened them. There were two handkerchiefs now—they were identical.

"Which is it, please?" she asked.

If Mr. Grimm was disappointed there was not a trace of it on his face. She laughed outright, gleefully, mockingly, then, demurely:

"Pardon me! You see, it's absurd. The handkerchief the butler restored to me at dinner, after I lost one in the senor's office, might have been either of these, or one of ten other duplicates in my room, all given to me by her Maj— I mean," she corrected quickly, "by a friend in Europe." She was silent for a moment. "Is that all?"

"No," replied Mr. Grimm gravely, decisively. "I'm not satisfied. I shall insist upon the return of the money, and if it is not forthcoming I dare say Count di Rosini, the Italian ambassador, would be pleased to give his personal check rather than have the matter become public." She started to interrupt; but he went on. "In any event you will be requested to leave the country."

Then, and not until then, a decided change came over Miss Thorne's face. A deeper color leaped to her cheeks, the smile faded from her lips, and there was a flash of uneasiness in her eyes.

Great Solvers of Problems.

Two hours of honest, quiet solitude and silence will shovel several barrels full of mental and moral garbage out of you. And nothing else will do this so well.

STATE CAPITAL NEWS

HEALTH OF STATE BEST IN YEARS.

Health Commissioner Dixon reported that the list of communicable diseases for June was the lowest experienced throughout the State for several years. The report showed a total of 7686, a decrease of 5162 as compared with May, and a decrease of 2654 and 1282 compared with June of 1910 and 1909 respectively. The commissioner declares the co-operation of the people of the State in enforcing the laws largely is responsible for the excellent showing.

Continuing, Mr. Dixon said:

This decrease is even more remarkable than appears on its face from the fact that reports for the present year cover practically every city, borough and township in the State, while in previous years reports from quite a few of the boroughs and townships were not reported, and then again, intelligent, moral and faithful physicians have awakened to the necessity of co-operating with the great move being made to prevent sickness and death.

The Government work notwithstanding these great results is criticised by those who have been punished for the violation of our laws governing these sanitary conditions of our Commonwealth. Fortunately the new Medical Bureau of Pennsylvania can consider the moral character of a man before granting a license to practice medicine and that same bureau can revoke medical licenses when the holders of the same are guilty of malpractice.

The splendid health law formulated by Dr. Charles B. Penrose and passed by the Legislature of 1905 is beginning to show a reduction in the great total of communicable diseases. The special diseases showing marked decrease are scarlet fever and measles, the latter of which has been heretofore looked upon by those in care of children as being harmless nothwithstanding it was so deadly as shown by the report of the new Bureau of Statistics.

Typhoid fever, a disease which should be exterminated remains lower than for previous years, and the only disease showing a tendency to increase is whooping cough, of which disease the State Department, even with the help of all the newspapers in the State, has not been able to awaken the people to the enormity of the death rate and to its power to leave in its wake tuberculosis and other afflictions.

The decrease in communicable diseases is not confined to cities, boroughs or townships, but is general all over the forty-five thousand square miles of territory in the State.

Noon-Hour Lunch Law.

Chief Factory Inspector Delaney issued notices to all deputy factory inspectors informing them that they must enforce the acts fixing the period of time allowed for the noonday meal in the industrial establishments of the State. In his notice Chief Delaney says: The act of 1905 provides one hour for the noonday meal, which may, for good cause be reduced to less than one hour. The act of 1909 fixes forty-five minutes as the minimum period for the noonday meal for males under sixteen and females under eighteen years of age. In inforcing these acts you will hereafter proceed as follows: In establishments where no males under sixteen years, and no females under eighteen years of age are employed, you may, for good cause allow thirty minutes, but in establishments where males under sixteen and females under eighteen years are employed no less than forty-five minutes must be permitted for the noonday meal.

Bigelow to Start Surveys Soon.

State Highway Commissioner Bigelow announced the appointment as assistant engineer of C. W. Hardt, Wellsboro; Arthur W. Long, Scranton; Edward S. Frey, York, and W. A. Wynn, Pittsburg. They will assume their duties at once. The plan is to start surveys as soon as engineer corps can be organized, and by next Spring it is expected to have complete data regarding the 296 routes mentioned in the Sproud bill. The first survey will be made between this city and Gettysburg, over the lines of the old Gettysburg and Harrisburg turnpike. The commissioner announced that the first bids under the new road building act would be opened August 2 for the construction of the stretch of road through Lewistown "narrows." This will be part of the Juniata Valley main road and will be built in conjunction with street improvement in Mifflin Borough.

Complain Against Reading.

The borough of Manheim, Lancaster county, through its Chief Burgess, John H. Schenck, has filed a complaint against the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company. It is alleged that upon various occcasions the crossings in the borough have been blocked by the company's cars and that on June 7 of this year the highway was obstructed for twenty-six minutes. The company was requested to disclose the names of those responsible for the violation of the ordinance.

A child was born to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Musser at Penns Cave.

Mrs. C. A. Weaver, of Baileyville, is at the home of her mother in Centre Hall.

Andrew Knarr, while working in the woods in Sugar Valley, was badly injured by being struck by a falling tree.

The corn through Penns Valley is in fine condition. The prospects for a good crop resulted from the rain on Sunday night and the two rains during the week previous.

Early Tuesday morning Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Dinges and children, Ralph and Mary started for Unionville, making the trip in a carriage. At the place named they visited Mrs. Lizzie Hogan, an aunt of Mrs. Dinges.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm D. Fleming and son, and Mrs. Fleming's mother, of Wheeling, West Virginia, are expected in Centre Hall the latter part of this week. Earl Fleming, of New York, will also be here at the same time.

Miss Minnie Kline will conduct services in Moyer's grove, near Colyer, on Saturday and Sunday evenings, and Sunday morning in the church at Tusseyville. Attention is called to the fact that there will be no service during the day in the Moyer grove.

A booklet telling of the holding and operations of the Monon Coal Company, with its main office in Chicago, was sent to the Reporter by W. E. Spangler, one of the auditors of the company. The concern named does an extensive bussiness, and owns nine mines in Green, Sullivan, Clay and Vigo counties.

Although he became grandfather quite recently, Prof. D. O. Etters does not feel a bit too old to finish the term of county superintendent of schools to which he was reelected in May. The one that first has the opportunity to "goo, goo" as his grandchild is Katharine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Etters, of Wilmington, Delaware.

Mrs. Eliza Stump, east of Centre Hall, a soldier's widow, is remodeling her dwelling house, the mechanical work being done by John Luse and crew. Philip A Leaster, farmer west of town, is also making extensive improvements to his farm outildings, in the way of building sheds and remodeling a portion of the house. Mr. Leister lives on the Alexander farm, purchased by him last winter.

The land-owner feels that there is more profit in tilling the soil now than there was some years ago when landlords were bribing sturdy farmers to sign leases, whereas now the farmer is seeking the landlord and imploring him to lease to him his acres. This will be attested to by Isaiah Fleisher, of Philadelphia, who owns a productive farm near Tusseyville, and on account of the death of his tenant, Fillman Klinefelter, is having the experience referred to. Mr. Fleisher was in Centre Hall last week, having come here largely on account of his interest in Potter township real estate.

At the last commencement of the Lock Haven State Normal School a large class graduated and it is interesting to note that the graduates of this high grade Normal School have no difficulty in securing positions as teachers. Several young men were elected to positions as teachers with salaries ranging from eighty to ninety dollars a month. Thirty-two of the graduating class had experience as teachers and they now have lucrative positions for next year. Many improvements are being made during the summer so that when the school opens on September 11th, everything will be in first class shape for the large school that is sure to enroll.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Meyer, and their son Nevin Meyer and wife, all of Boalsburg, on Saturday went to Millheim to attend the reunion of the Reformed charges of that section, held in Frank's Grove. Afterward they visited among a number of friends among whom were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Haffley, Mr. and Mrs. James Wert, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Stover, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bartges and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gilmen. One thing that pleased them very much was the fine stock kept by the farmers in that section, and especially by Mr. Stover and Mr. Bartges. The latter keeps a herd of nine cows, and as many as forty pounds of butter are churned at one time, the power to do the work being furnished by a gasoline engine, which also turns the separator, washing machine, chop mill, etc.

LOCALS.

Dr. H. F. Bitner is having his residence painted.

Samuel J. Wagner and son Cyrus D., of Boalsburg, were in Centre Hall on Monday, and called on the Reporter.

Sunday night there was a rainfall of just one-half inch. Monday night high winds prevailed, switching much fruit from the trees. Apples, pears, plums and peaches suffered.

The first load of alfalfa ever taken to Ebensburg, Cambria county, was sold in that town last Monday for $30 a ton. It was raised on the farm of Louis E. Kaylor, editor of the Cambria Tribune. That beats the Reporter's efforts as to price on alfalfa.

Col. W. Fred Reynolds, of Bellefonte, has purchased a fine new Flanders runabout for his son, Frederick, who has developed into an enthusiastic autoist and will have the opportunity to drive his own car hereafter. Irvin J. Dreese, of Lemont, has also invested in a Flanders.

A team of mules hitched to a wagon loaded with grain ran away at Madisonburg recently. One of the mules was being ridden by a young son of William Rishel and when the wagon came in contact with a telephone pole, both animal and boy were thrown to the ground, the lad thereby sustaining a broken leg.

The Lewisburg Chronicle is doing good campaign work for Judge McClure, and is doing it gratis. To oppose Judge McClure because it will put him in line to retire on half-pay, should he be re-elected often enough, and live to be seventy, is most foolish. Better judge him by his decision in the bridge case.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Smith, during the past few days, have been at the home of the former's mother, Mrs Maggie Smith, in Centre Hall. The couple were married in June but most of the time since then has been spent in the south, where Mr. Smith was employed with an electrical company, making this their first visit to Penns Valley.

All the young men along the line between Penns Cave and Lemont gave State College credit for being the home of the large number of the pretty young ladies who have been traveling from the latter place to the former to view the beauties of the cavern, but now it turns out that these young ladies are school teachers attending the summer school.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Keefer and son Harold, of Sunbury, are at the Centre Hall hotel. Mr. Keefer is the senior member of the firm of S. H. Snyder & Co., general merchants, in Sunbury. Tied down to business during practically all of the years, except the short vacation in July, Mr. Keefer, as well as the family, enjoy that time here to its fullest extent.

Misses Eliza Moore and Jennie Bottorf were callers at the Reporter office on Saturday evening. The former states that barring the heat, Mrs. Sarah J. Kerlin was having such a delightful visit with her son Edwin and daughter Miss Nellie, at Haverhill, Massachusetts, that she has not indicated a time for returning although she has been away for six or more weeks.

George W. Condo and family, of Jeannette, came to Centre Hall to spend some time with the "folks at home." Mr. Condo has been engaged in the butchering business ever since leaving Centre Hall. He is a skilled workman in that line, and has been successful otherwise. He was in business for himself, but some months ago sold out, and is now employed with Frank Hiberer.

Charles E. Allison, son of Hon. W. M. Allison, of Spring Mills, came to Centre Hall from New York, last week, where he was met by his brother Franklin, and after a brief stay with their aunt, Mrs. Lillie Alexander, they went to Spring Mills. Mr. Allison is general manager for the Shipley Construction and Supply Company, who handle the product of the York Refrigerator Company.

Miss Minnie Cooper, of Freeport, Illinois, is a guest of her cousin Miss Gertrude Spangler. Miss Cooper is the daughter of B. G. Cooper, ex-Treasurer of Stephenson county, and served four years as his deputy. On her way east she visited Niagara Falls, Albany, New York, Atlantic City, Philadelphia and Washington. Miss S. S. Harris is also a guest at the Spangler home. Miss Harris is one of the office force of "The Sword of the Spirit," published in Philadelphia, and was a former resident of Shawville, Canada.

The new catalog of the Lock Haven State Normal School is one of the handsomest issued by any secondary school in this state. It contains a great deal of valuable information concerning this splendid Normal School. We note that its faculty is made up of graduates of our leading colleges and universities and has a specially trained expert at the head of its fine Training School and this means much for prospective teachers. It has a fine Gymnasium and Athletic Field, and the school aims to develop its students not only educationally, but morally and physically. Write for a catalog.

TWO BARNS BURNED.

Rhinesmith and Fishburn Barns Near Axe Mann Destroyed Tuesday Evening.

Two large barns, one the property of Daniel Rhinesmith and the other that of Henry Fishburn, near Axe Mann, were totally burned to the ground on Tuesday evening at about seven o'clock. All the cattle, except one calf, were taken from the barns as were also most of the implements.

The fire originated in the Rhinesmith barn, and was observed a short time after Mr. Rhinesmith had finished doing the chores.

When the flames were first seen they were leaping through the roof, which leads to the conclusion that the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion. The flames at once communicated to the Fishburn barn, which is located a few feet distant.

Mr. Rhinesmith had insurance in the Centre Hall company, D. F. Luse, agent. His insurance is as follows: Barn, $200; hay, grain, straw, $250; implements, $250; harness, $14.

The other barn was owned by Henry Fishburn, and was insured for $1200 in the Sugar Valley Company, William Smeltzer, of Zion, agent. The contents of the barn belonged to William Fishburn, and were not insured.

Among the latter's losses were the calf mentioned above, eight loads of unthreshed wheat, and a bob sled.

The barn was not used as a regular farm barn. The property was occupied by Dwight Stover.

The New Idea manure spreader has all other manure spreaders outdistanced, and the reason is it does the work without overburdening the team that hauls it. The New Idea spreads manure; no other machine spreads as evenly; it runs light, yet the machine is strong and durable. It has strength where strength is needed.—J. H. and S. E. DEATHS

After a short illness Mrs. G. W. Hosterman passed away at her home in Centre Hall at three o'clock Wednesday morning. Her death was due to diabetes, from which she suffered for some years. After a trip to Rebersburg the beginning of last week, Mrs. Hosterman took her bed, and from that time grew gradually worse until the end came. For the greater part of Monday and Tuesday she was unconscious, and when death came, which was most peaceful, she was surrounded by her family.

Funeral services will be held at the house on Friday at 10 a. m. Interment private.

Mrs. Hosterman before marriage was Kate A. Scholl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Scholl, both deceased. There survive the husband and three children, namely, Sumner V., of Lancaster; John S., of Montrose, and Helen S., wife of Prof. C. F. Shaw, of State College. One daughter, Elsie, died when a child. Mrs. Hosterman was aged fifty-five years and was the last of two children of the Scholl family.

Dr. and Mrs. Hosterman located in Centre Hall early in their married life, beginning housekeeping here, and have lived here continuously. She was a woman much attached to her home and little family. She was interested in church work, having been a member of the Reformed church from her youth, and was also engaged in W. C. T. U. and Hospital work.

Mrs. Stiver, wife of Hon. P. O. Stiver, editor of the Freeport (Illinois) Bulletin, is among friends in Centre county. While in Centre Hall she was the guest of W. B. Mingle, Esq., her cousin.

Several Bell telephone men have been working in Centre Hall for a few days. During a recent storm a number of wires in the cable were burned out, requiring a great deal of search to find the damaged place and repair it.

Miss Eva Johnson, of Harrisburg, is the guest of Miss Roxanna Brisbin in Centre Hall. She has been coming here ever since she was a little tot, and each year the desire to spend a part of her vacation here grows stronger. She is one of the city school teachers, Allison Hill being the point where she reigns.

Monsignor Nevin L. Fisher arrived in Philadelphia on Sunday from a European trip of a few weeks' length. Mgr. Fisher is a native of Boalsburg. He brought with him the "bulls" and the personal congratulations of the Holy Father, which invest Rev. Edward F. Prendergast with the office and authority as Archbishop of Philadelphia.

A Lottery Romance.

A few years ago, as the date for the drawing of the annual Christmas lottery at Madrid was approaching, a poor mechanic of Corunna was awakened three consecutive nights by the number 125,869, apparently spoken in his ear. So impressed was he by the repetition of the incident that he wrote down the number and jocularly said to his wife, "That number will win the first prize in the great lottery." "Then why don't you buy the ticket?" his wife answered jokingly as she looked at the figures. "Why, see, if you add them together they just come to my age. I shall be thirty-one on Christmas day." The ticket, after much trouble, was found (it had been rejected a few minutes earlier by a wealthy citizen of Corunna) and bought, and before many days had passed the mechanic and his wife were made jubilant by the news that the ticket had won the first prize of £200,000.—London Globe.

The Red Shirt.

The origin of the "red shirt"—worn as a blouse by English women in the sixties, when Garibaldi was a popular idol throughout Great Britain—is sufficiently curious. When the celebrated filibuster was warring in the South American republics he was anxious to obtain a distinctive and, above all, economical uniform for his followers. He learned that a local dry goods store had an immense "job lot" of these garments, worn by the "saladeros," or cattle slaughterers, of the great South American cities. The "bargain sale" appealed eloquently to the leader's purse, and he led his men to victory in the butchers' shirts, which are now the accepted emblem of the "risorgomiento" of United Italy.—London Globe.

A Little Temperance Tragedy.

"Don't drink any more, John. You've got too much already."

"No, I haven't."

"Yes, you have, and you'll be drunk again."

"Aw, what do you want to worry about that for? It's me that has the headache next morning."

"I know, John, but it's me that has the heartache all the time."—New York Times.

The Price of Love.

Says an advertisement in the London Express: "Mary—Waited three hours at appointed spot until questioned by suspicious policeman. If this is the price of love it is too heavy a one for me to pay. Farewell. Potts."

Time and Patience.

No road is too long for him who advances slowly and does not hurry, and no attainment is beyond his reach who equips himself with patience to achieve it.—La Bruyere.

DAIRY

"FLY TIME" AMONG THE COWS

Some Individual Animals Seem to Suffer More Than Others—Various Remedies Suggested.

(By WALTER B. LEUTZ.)

Midsummer is known as "fly time" in the dairyman's calendar. The marked falling off in the milk flow of the dairy cows at this season of the year is looked upon as unavoidable, and is attributed by many to the worry of the stock by flies. The failure to provide an abundance of succulent forage to supplement the parched pastures seems a trifling contributory cause of the lessening milk secretion, compared with the activity of the pesky, ubiquitous fly, especially at milking time.

The flies that are most numerous about cattle are known by their common names of the stable fly and the horn fly.

The stable fly resembles the house fly very much in appearance, but differs in having the mouth parts fitted for piercing the skin and sucking the blood of animals. The eggs of the stable fly are usually laid in horse manure, the female laying from 125 to 150 in a season. The period of development from egg to adult fly is about 15 days.

The horn fly is a new pest and was first noticed in this country about 1886. The first appearance of this fly was the cause of considerable alarm among the cattle men, and the experiment stations of the various states were appealed to for information in regard to the origin and life history of this insect and for suggestions as to agencies for repelling it.

The horn fly is a small, gray fly, very much like the house fly, but smaller, measuring about three-sixteenths of an inch in length. They have the strange habit of settling in great numbers about the base of a horn, which they sometimes completely cover, a habit which gives them their common name. They confine their attention to cattle. They burrow in the hair about the shoulder, the roots of the tail and other portions of the body where they are not easily dislodged. The injury done by the horn fly is by stinging, much like the mosquito. By means of a fine lancet they pierce the skin and suck the blood through the tube or sheath.

Some individual animals suffer more than others and dark colored animals more than light colored. These flies follow cattle to the barn at night and remain with them all the time.

Various remedies have been suggested by good authorities.

Destruction of larvae in the droppings by application of lime or the immediate spreading and drying of the same.

Application of tobacco powder to destroy the flies.

Application of one of the following repellants: Ten to fifteen per cent kerosene in water.

Fish oil with small mixture of carbolic acid. Cottonseed oil, two parts and pine tar one part.

FEED SALT TO LIVE STOCK

Receptacle Shown in the Illustration Is Designed for Use Either in Field or Corral.

The salt receptacle shown in the illustration is designed for use in a field or corral. It affords free access to the stock for obtaining the requisite amount of salt, and at the same time protects the salt from the elements and prevents waste. The opening is protected by a hood which the animal shoves open by putting his nose under it and lifting upward. When the nose is withdrawn from the opening thus made, the hood drops down again by its own weight. A sufficient opening is always left to expose the salt and attract the stock.

Handling Cows in Summer.

There is a tradition that cows will do better in warm weather than in cold weather, but experience has disproved this fact. It is often easier to reproduce summer conditions in the winter stable than it is to thoroughly protect the stock from the pests that make them go dry in summer.

Equipment for Dairy Farm.

The cream separator, the silo and the manure spreader should find a place in the equipment of every dairy farm.

SAVES MANY VALUABLE COWS

Harness Arrangement Will Prove of Greatest Aid to Animals During Calving Time.

Many valuable cows have been lost by the womb or calf-bed following the calf. In large herds a harness, as shown, will almost always keep in the bed when there is any danger. This must be kept on for 24 hours after calving, after which time there is not much danger. The part under the tail should be extra wide and so arranged that a clean, sanitary cloth can be put next to the cow's skin. A dangerous subject very often, when lying down in the stall before calving, will show an inch or so of the uterus, says a writer in the Country Gentleman. She should be carefully watched at calving, and as soon as she has calved put on the harness, which must be tightly strapped on, and then in an hour or so loosen it up to let away the after-birth or renew the sanitary cloth. It almost always happens that once a cow throws her bed she will do it again. In desperate cases two stitches can be made with a darning needle and fine white tape and left in for two days, giving sloppy drinks with a little opium in them. Raise the cow's hind end higher than her front end with inclined floor.

Saves the Cows.

GOOD STABLE SCREEN DOOR

If Made of Strong Material It Can Be Secured by Wide Board to Drop Into Brackets.

If the screen door for the cow stable is made of strong material it can be secured by a wide board to drop into brackets on each side. This protects the door and is easily made at home. One end of the board should be bolted loosely to the barn, so that it may act as a pivot and the boards be raised up when the door is opened.

Food for the Growing Calf.

Growing calves should have such food as insures growth. Fat is not needed in the dairy calf. Keep the calves comfortable, summer and winter, and growth will follow as a natural result.

Best Milk Producer.

Dairy farmers should not raise or buy timothy hay for cows. Clover or alfalfa is much better as a milk producer.

DAIRY NOTES

A cross bred cow is a mistake.

Each cow's udder should be thoroughly cleansed before milking.

Bloody milk or that from a sick cow should never be mixed with wholesome milk.

The uncovered cans of milk should be kept in cold water until they are delivered to the creamery.

The use of muslin in dairy windows instead of glass is said to lessen the danger from disease germs.

The secret of success in the dairy business is, test the cows, keep records, figure, know and do not guess.

The milk from a new milch cow should not be brought to the creamery until at least a fell week after the cow has calved.

The stable should not be cleaned or brushed nor should silage or roughage be fed until after all the cows of the herd are milked.

All milk cans should be washed first in cold water then thoroughly cleansed with warm water and finally rinsed in scalding hot water.

It really requires little care and attention to maintain milk and cream in a clean, sweet condition even during hot, sultry weather.

The cow is not working for you, but instead she is your master. The better work you do for her the larger salary she will pay you.

Whole oats, corn and wheat bran in equal parts with one-half part linseed meal added makes a good grain ration for the young calves.

When calves have a habit of sucking each other's ears it is best to separate or tie them. After they get to eating grain foods there will be no more trouble from this source.

ANOTHER BASEBALL STAR ON THE STAGE

Pitcher George Wiltse of New York Giants.

Not to be outdone by his side partner, Christy Mathewson, George Wiltse, the Giants' clever southpaw, will go on the stage next winter. George will not do a monologue stunt, but will be a member of a quartet composed of three other ball players in the big leagues. Wiltse is in fine form this season, and should the Giants win out the show will receive a big boom.

Wild Base Running Wins.

Wild base running seems the thing which is winning ball games for the Tigers this year.

ON QUESTION OF MANAGERS

Which Is More Capable, Bench or Playing?—Largely Matter of Individuals and Personality.

The discussion as to the relative merits of a bench and playing manager for a baseball team is again under way.

"I believe that before long all managers will be bench managers," says Hugh McBreen, treasurer of the Boston Americans. "I think the game is coming to that. Baseball has gone ahead so much and come to be so fast, before long the manager will have all he can do to sit on the bench and direct the play without attempting to get upon the coaching lines. Managers must plan ahead, must be figuring out the next play, and upon the lines they are apt to lose sight of moves ahead they have in their minds in the immediate duties of coaching.

"You see a manager coaching at first base one minute and then a situation arises that takes him over to third base, and it doesn't seem to me that he can make these moves and at the same time plan as clearly as if he were on the bench without anything to bother him except planning. Then, again, by sitting on the bench all the time with the players around him he is constantly getting their ideas and finding out just what they think of what ought to be done."

Now, it just happens that the Boston Americans have a bench manager, which may or may not influence McBreen's opinion; but at any rate it is probable that the officials of the New York, Cincinnati and Brooklyn clubs in the National league, and of the Athletics, Detroit, Chicago and Washington clubs, in the American league would agree with him.

The secretaries of the other major league teams would probably declare in favor of the playing managers, who are as follows:

Chance, Chicago Cubs, first base; Clarke, Pittsburg Pirates, left field; Dooin, Phillies, catcher; Bresnahan, St. Louis Cardinals catcher; Tenney, Boston Doves, first base; Chase, Yankees, first base; Wallace, St. Louis Browns, shortstop.

The whole question is, of course, largely a matter of individuals and personality, and will probably be a source for argument as long as the game exists.

Western teams appear to be the most formidable competitors for both Chicago teams this season.

Catcher Madden, formerly of the Boston Red Sox, has been purchased by the Philadelphia Nationals.

Umpires are beginning to feel that the manly art of self defense is more satisfactory than the levying of fines.

Bobby Wallace has signed a hard hitting collegian in Fred Busch of the Michigan Agricultural college team.

Catcher Lou Criger of the Milwaukee American association baseball team was given his unconditional release.

Good, taken in trade by the Cubs from Boston for Kaiser, has been playing a strong article of baseball so far.

Wagner does not play first with as much grace as he does short, but he gets everything that comes anywhere near him.

Trainer Tuttle of the Detroit Tigers says Jennings' men never bother their heads trying to pilfer signals from opposing batteries.

Babe Towne, manager of the Sioux City team and a former White Sox, is leading the batting list of the Western with a .425 average.

Joe O'Brien is being boomed by some of his friends in the American association circuit for the next president of the National league.

Battery of Brothers.

"You hear a lot about brothers pitching and catching and making a battery," says Bob Groom, the toothpick twirler of the Washington Nationals. "Well, I was a member of the Groom brothers battery once, back in Illinois. That was before I entered professional ball. I was known as the 'strikeout king' around St. Louis, not far from my home, and usually I fanned 15 or 16 men in a game. I didn't have much but a wide curve, but, oh, how it used to feaze those lads trying to hit it. During the entire season before I entered organized baseball I averaged 15 strikeouts to a game.

"I was billed as one of the Groom brothers battery and people used to come to see us work. Alec Groom and Bob Groom got their names in the papers with great regularity.

"But Alec Groom wasn't my brother. He was my cousin. However, few ever knew that, and we passed for a long time as the Groom brothers battery."

SHOWED OLD BALL LIVELIER

Boston People Experiment After Doubting Resiliency of New Sphere—Test Causes Confusion.

There has been much controversy among baseball players and baseball fans this season regarding the ball now in use in the major leagues, the disputants lining up on the question whether the ball now in use is or is not livelier than the one used last season.

Many claim that the high batting averages of some of the players at the present time are due to the livelier ball, while others claim that they are due to the ineffectiveness of the pitchers and that the ball is no livelier than the one used last season.

Of course, if the manufacturers will not settle the doubt it would be necessary to subject the balls to scientific tests and examination in order to definitely determine the facts, and even then balls which were supposed to be identical in make might show a difference in resiliency because it probably is not possible that any two of them are exactly alike.

Some tests were made the other day with two balls, one of them issued for use in the American league late last season, and one that was issued for the season of 1911. These were dropped from a height of 15 feet simultaneously. They struck a concrete floor at as nearly the same instant as they could be made to do so, and they were photographed at the moment they had reached the extreme height of the rebound.

It was found that the ball issued for last season bounded higher than the one issued for this season, the difference in height being clearly shown in the photograph.

Several other tests were made and invariably the 1910 ball proved to be the liveller. These tests with only two balls are absolutely decisive of nothing as regards the general proposition, but they show clearly enough that the ball that was issued in 1910 was, in this particular case, livelier than the one issued for 1911. Whether a series of experiments more accurately and scientifically made would show the same or opposite results remains to be seen.

The experiment made recently would seem to confuse the problem still further, for the players generally say that the ball is livelier this year than it was last.

IS SURE OF CHAMPIONSHIP

Eddie Collins Says Detroit Has But One Pitcher, and Does Not Fear Tigers in Pennant Race.

List to a few optimistic prophecies from one Eddie Trowbridge Collins. Edward is not one of those given to cerise touches of prophetic language, but he says that the pennant for 1911 is nailed down for the world's champions. Not a team, Detroit, or anybody else in the American league, can Eddie see has a thing on the Champs.

"I don't like to appear foolish with a lot of talk about the race," shot forth the great midget, "but I want to go on record as saying that we will jam down that pennant as sure as shooting. If our pitchers had been working we would have a lead now that would help a lot.

"Detroit is the team that we will have to beat. We'll do it. It hasn't a man who looks like a twirler except George Mullin, and it can't work him every day. By the first of September we'll have the grand old rag mortgaged, and don't forget it. It is going to be no runaway race, of course, as we have a late start. But we will win as sure as the sun shines. There will be nothing to it."

Percentages Change Often.

So many changes are being made in the percentage column these days it makes fans dizzy to keep track of them.

NOT A "FULL-LENGTH" PAPA

Child Wanted Original of Portrait That Had Been Made So Familiar to Her.

An amusing incident is related of a young service matron who had relinquished her husband for two years and who, having before his departure insisted on a good photograph, applied herself assiduously to the upbringing of her two-year-old baby with a view to the child's familiarity with her distinguished father. Each day she would call the baby girl to her and, kneeling beside her, would hold up the photograph, pointing out each feature to the child.

One day the officer came home, and the baby girl, then four years old, was summoned. "Come, dear," said the mother in glee, "papa has come home at last!" The child surveyed the officer in perplexity and finally shook her head.

"What is the matter, dear?" asked her mother. "Well," replied the child, "he looks something like my papa, but my papa hasn't any legs!"

ECZEMA ON HANDS AND FEET

"In the latter part of 1889 my face and head broke out in little pimples. My doctor gave me some medicine and a salve. I used them for months but did not receive any results. In the meantime it broke out all over my back and chest. I then went to another doctor and he told me the same as my own doctor—that it was eczema. He also gave me medicine for eighteen months. All I could see was that he moved it from my face and body to my hands and feet, and although I did everything, I could not heal my hands and feet. My hands would split open on the joints and would be so sore that I could not use them at times. Then I started to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment in July, 1893, and before 1894 I was fully cured. I therefore recommend the Cuticura Soap and Ointment to any person having skin disease. As soon as I began to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment I found relief at once.

"My sister, Miss Rebecca Jackson, had a breaking out on her face and hands the same as myself. She used Cuticura Soap and Ointment for seven or eight months, and was cured entirely." (Signed) Samuel F. Jackson, 1217 Pine St., Philadelphia, Pa., May 5, 1911.

His sister writes: "What my brother says is quite true, and you can imagine how I suffered and how glad I was to be cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment." (Signed) Miss Rebecca Jackson, 18 Delaware St., Trenton, N. J.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 25 K, Boston.

Rifle for Under Water Use.

When he is working in water infested by sharks and other sea monsters likely to do him harm, the diver has at present to rely for his safety on the use of the knife or, failing that, on a quick return to the surface. Now comes the invention of Captain Grobl, a German diving instructor, who has constructed a rifle which can be fired under water, and is designed for the better arming of the diver. The most remarkable thing about this is that it fires, not bullets, but water, which is propelled with such farce that it has an extraordinary power of penetration. Indeed, the inventor himself has pierced armor plate of medium thickness with the water jet from his weapon. The rifle has a stout barrel and is loaded with a cartridge cased in India rubber.

HOW DAINTY DISHES CAN BE MADE OF COLD MEAT.

Beef Saute Is Appetizing Offering for Hot Day—Baked Meat Cake—Meat Pie—Tomato Hot Pie—Beef Roll.

Beef Saute—Cut up cold roast of any kind of small pieces, as much as is needed for a stew. Put butter in a pan and brown a large onion cut up fine; add meat and let it brown quickly; then add a tablespoon of cornmeal; keep stirring and turning and add water to cover; also add one or two carrots, cut small; cook about two hours, then add a cup of fresh milk. Care must be taken to stir it often, as the cornmeal makes it thick; also a nice, rich gravy.

Baked Meat Cake—Crop one cup of cold meat and a little ham, one cup of bread crumbs, one beaten egg, salt and pepper to taste; add little dabs of butter. Moisten with one cup of gravy and water, or soup stock. Bake one hour.

Meat Pie—Cut up cold meat and brown it with butter and onion; add water, potatoes cut small and whatever vegetables you happen to have. Put the stew in a deep dish and cover with a deep layer of seasoned mashed potatoes. Spread a little soft butter over the potatoes and bake half an hour.

Macaroni Pie—Boil one pound of maraconi in salted water about 20 minutes, drain it, and put a layer of macaroni in a deep buttered pan; then add a layer of minced cold meat, seasoning, chopped onion and some tomato juice mixed with some gravy. Add the remaining macaroni, pour over this a cup of milk, some grated cheese and bread crumbs. Bake half an hour and serve hot.

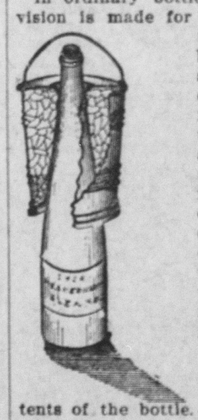
Tomato Hot Pie—Put in a pan one can of tomatoes, one pound of meat cut small and one cup of bread crumbs, cook on top of stove 15 minutes. Then turn into a deep dish and bake half an hour. Send to table in dish it is baked in. To be eaten with potatoes.

Beef Roll—Roll out biscuit dough thin, cover with hamburger steak mixed with salt, pepper and chopped onion; roll like a jelly cake and bake an hour and a half. Serve with brown gravy.

Brown Gravy—Melt a tablespoon of butter, add two tablespoons of flour, keep stirring till a golden brown, add a cup of hot water poured in slowly; add salt and pepper and let cook till smooth. This gravy can be used for most any kind of meat. Very nice for steak and chops.

BOTTLE COOLER

In ordinary bottle coolers no provision is made for covering the upper part of the bottle with ice, and as a consequence the liquid first drawn out of the bottle is not as cool as it should be. A German inventor has conceived the idea of placing the ice over the top of the bottle, and as the cooler liquid falls owing to its greater weight, a circulation is set up which will cool the entire contents of the bottle. The cooler consists of a double-walled cylinder, the inner wall being arranged to fit onto the bottle. The ice is placed between the two walls of the cylinder. A rubber band on the inner wall presses against the bottle neck, so as to hold the bottle in the cooler when the latter is lifted by means of the handle.—Scientific American.



An Italian Summer Drink.

Most refreshing in hot weather is the Italian drink graniti, a half frozen mixture which will pour, but is not quite liquid. Any summer beverage made from fruit juice or any kind of punch may be turned into a graniti by the process of freezing only until a snowy consistency is reached. The frosted sides of the freezer toward the middle of the liquid should be scraped several times during the freezing process. Claret graniti is made by adding one bottle of claret to a pint of orangeade, and sherry graniti by adding a bottle of sherry to one quart of rich lemonade.

Tomatoes and Spaghetti.

Put fat drippings in frying pan, cut three onions and put in drippings. Let them simmer until onions have become brown. Then drain off onions. Stew one can of tomatoes and one small package of spaghetti separately. Then put drippings in the stewed tomatoes, also two tablespoonfuls of flour, pouring over whole the spaghetti. The color should be lighter than the tomato shade. You will find this delicious. The flavor of onion runs all through. Beef drippings are the best to use.

Toasting Fork.

A new toasting fork is made of aluminum with a long enough handle to warrant the cook's not becoming burned by getting too close to the fire. This is the lightest sort of kitchen ware, and easily kept clean, needing no scouring, but simply a washing in hot water.

IDEAL SHELTER FOR OUTING

Simple Arrangement That Does Away With Many Objectionable Features of Ordinary Tent.

When a tent is closed it is about as interesting as a London fog. When open it is invaded by all sorts of creeping things. A rain storm of a few days covers everything with blue mold. I have evolved the following relief: First, start with a floor the size of the tent you require. Ten by twelve feet is a convenient size and shape. This should be raised six inches from the ground. Next, on this flooring, build a light framework with pointed roof. The sides should be six feet in height. Cover all this with wire netting, using a screen door for entrance. The roof, if so desired, may be covered with canvas or other material; green burlap is desirable for this purpose and also for the inside curtains, which should be hung from the top of the room on all sides and so arranged that they may easily roll up and down, simply tying them with tape. I advise the green burlap because of its cool, restful tone, which alleviates the glare from the canvas. Over this screened room spread the usual canvas "fly" that roofs and protects the ordinary tent, letting it extend well beyond the ends and sides. It also might be well to have flaps at the front and back to close in case of severe storms. For invalids, for tuberculosis patients epecially, I believe this to be superior to any of the other out-of-door arrangements now in use. It is inexpensive; the cost of the outfit will probably not exceed that of the ordinary canvas tent. When not in use it can easily be taken apart and stored. The wire netting if carefully rolled and cared for will last for years.—Belle Gray Taylor.

RECIPE FOR ORANGE PUDDING

Delicious Concoction Well Worth the Little Trouble It Takes to Make It.

One and one-half cups of flour, one and one-half teaspoons of baking powder, one cup of butter, three-fourths of a cup of sugar, four eggs, or three, with a little milk, four oranges. Grate the rind of the oranges, being sure not to grate any of the white, and put it aside in a separate vessel. Cream the butter and sugar well, add eggs, the grated orange rind, the flour, and lastly the baking powder. Put in a mold and steam for two hours. A very nice mold, if you have not a regular one, is a small lard pail, which, with this recipe leaves room for the pudding to swell, has a lid to put down good and tight on the pudding, and handle to lift it out with. Butter the inside of your pudding mold, do not look inside during the process of boiling, as that makes the pudding fall, and be sure that the water is kept to the level of the pudding. Add boiling, not cold or warm water.

Orange Sauce.—Squeeze out the juice of the oranges, and strain; two teaspoonfuls of cornstarch, one-half pint of water, four spoonfuls of brown sugar. Boil sugar and water together, add starch to orange juice, boil until thick, all together, and pour around the pudding after you take it from the mold. Make the sauce just before taking the pudding from the mold, and have both piping hot when you take it to the table.

Stuffed Prunes.

A most delightful addition to the usual buffet "spread" served at card parties is the stuffed prune. We have had dates stuffed with nuts for years, and also the Weisbaden prunes filled with smaller prunes, but what I have reference to here is the home-made variety. The time and your sticky hands will be well repaid by the toothsome nature of the delicacy. Soak a pound of the best quality large prunes you can procure in sherry and water for about 20 minutes, then stone them carefully. Try not to break up the prune any more than necessary. Have a pound of dates also stoned and put a prepared date in the center of each prune and carefully press the opening together. Sprinkle again with sherry and roll in powdered sugar. Keep in a closely covered tin box until you are ready to serve them.—Exchange.

Striped Sandwiches.

Cut a number of slices of both white and brown bread. Slices must be quite thick, nearly one-half inch. Butter liberally and stack together five slices, first a brown, then a white, a brown, a white and a brown, pressing together firmly so they will hold. Slice down through this stack, making the slices the thickness wished for the sandwiches. The result is an exceedingly eatable and pretty striped sandwich, which can be trimmed into any shape desired.

Black Butter Sauce.

This receipt requires two tablespoonfuls of butter, one teaspoonful of vinegar and one teaspoonful of chopped parsley. Fry the butter in a stew pan until it is light brown, take off the fire and stir in the vinegar and chopped parsley.

Junket and Egg.

Add two eggs beaten to a froth and sweeten with four teaspoons of sugar to a pint of milk. Curdle with essence of pepsin or junket tablets. Pour into cups.

Pineapple Pie.

One can pineapple chopped, one cup milk, two-thirds cup sugar, three tablespoons flour, two crusts.

Weekly Review of Trade and Market Reports.

Bradstreet's says:

"The events of the week have been mainly favorable, including, as they do, the passing, temporarily at least, of the heated wave, the worst for a decade; the occurrence of rains in drought-stricken sections, staying the further deterioration of the corn crop; the maintenance of flattering conditions as to the cotton crop outlook, and the widening of activity in the iron and steel trade. Though mid-summer quiet still prevails, trade conditions display a slightly better undertone, thanks to the breaking of the hot wave and to timely rains in the Western country. More moisture is needed for corn and oats, but the precipitations that have occurred have superinduced a better feeling and incidentally produced a little more spot business. Withal, buyers are conservative about placing orders for future business, and comparatively few salesmen are on the road. In fact, most interests seem to realize that trade will not improve much until near the fall season when prospects as to crop yields will be more freely developed. There is a trifle more doing in industrial lines, even though there is still considerable dullness."

The Fountain Head of Life Is The Stomach

A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished.

Dr. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY makes the stomach strong, promotes the flow of digestive juices, restores the lost appetite, makes assimilation perfect, invigorates the liver and purifies and enriches the blood. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder and restorative nerve tonic. It makes men strong in body, active in mind and cool in judgement.

This "Discovery" is a pure, glyceric extract of American medical roots, absolutely free from alcohol and all injurious, habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients are printed on its wrappers. It has no relationship with secret nostrums. Its every ingredient is endorsed by the leaders in all the schools of medicine. Don't accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this time-proven remedy OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. ASK YOUR NEIGHBORS. They must know of many cures made by it during past 40 years, right in your own neighborhood. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N. Y.

Seventy-One Years in a Shoe Shop.

Charles H. Wilson of Troy, N. Y., occupies the unique position of having been in business in one building for 71 years; at least he will have completed 71 years in the shoe business at 242-244 River street August 12 next. This record, it is believed, can be equaled by few if any shoe retailers in this country. Mr. Wilson has also been in business for himself for more than 50 years. Mr. Wilson is today just as much in active business as he was almost three-quarters of a century ago, when as a thirteen-year-old lad he entered the employ of John Leonard Williams of Troy. To be exact, that was August 12, 1840. Mr. Williams kept a shoe store at 242-244 River street in a building which had been erected in 1803, and so the building now occupied by Mr. Wilson for his retail shoe business is one of the oldest buildings in Troy.

Work for Extinction of Tuberculosis.

Exhibitions showing in graphic form the prevention of consumption have been shown in every state in the United States, except Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico and Wyoming, and also in most of the Canadian provinces and in Mexico, Porto Rico and Cuba, according to a statement made by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. There are now 25 states and 16 cities having permanent and traveling exhibits besides the two operated by the National association itself, and the total number of similar displays is over 200, including about 150 small school exhibits. The first tuberculosis exhibit in America was shown by the Maryland Tuberculosis commission in January, 1904. In 1906 there were four such exhibits.

FALSE HUNGER

A Symptom of Stomach Trouble Corrected by Good Food.

There is, with some forms of stomach trouble, an abnormal craving for food which is frequently mistaken for a "good appetite." A lady teacher writes from Carthage, Mo., to explain how with good food she dealt with this sort of hurtful hunger.

"I have taught school for fifteen years, and up to nine years ago had good, average health. Nine years ago, however, my health began to fail, and continued to grow worse steadily, in spite of doctor's prescriptions, and everything I could do. During all this time my appetite continued good, only the more I ate the more I wanted to eat—I was always hungry.

"The first symptoms of my breakdown were a distressing nervousness and a loss of flesh. The nervousness grew so bad that finally it amounted to actual prostration. Then came stomach troubles, which were very painful, constipation which brought on piles, dyspepsia and severe nervous headaches.

"The doctors seemed powerless to help me, said I was overworked, and at last urged me to give up teaching, if I wished to save my life.

"But this I could not do. I kept on at it as well as I could, each day growing more wretched, my will-power alone keeping me up, till at last a good angel suggested that I try a diet of Grape-Nuts food, and from that day to this I have found it delicious always appetizing and satisfying.

"I owe my restoration to health to Grape-Nuts. My weight has returned and for more than two years I have been free from the nervousness, constipation, piles, headaches, and all the ailments that used to punish me so, and have been able to work freely and easily." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

No Luck.

"I never do have any such luck as the other boys!" complained young Harold.

"Why, I am surprised!" answered his mother. "You have roller skates, a bicycle, a football suit, and a ticket to the gymnasium. Some boys would think themselves very lucky if they had those things."

"Yes, but Willie Swaddling's house burned down, and he helped to save things! Tom Anderson's house was robbed and he heard the burglar! And Jack Turner is sick, and the neighbors are carrying ice cream and stuff to him."

Government Regulation.

"You've got poison in your system," said the doctor to the patient who thought he had malaria.

"Maybe I have," he admitted, "maybe I have. "I don't eat anything but what is guaranteed under the pure food law."—Judge.

LOCALS.

N. Bigler Shaffer, one of the Potter township board of supervisors, on Saturday went to Mill Hall to visit a sister.

The opening of the Panama Canal is an event big enough to be celebrated by the holding of two expositions, and both of them will be hummers.

Rev. B. F. Beiber last week attended a Lutheran reunion at Sunbury. While he was there Mrs. Beiber and little daughter Frances spent the time at Watsontown, with Mr. Beiber's sister.

John R. Eckley, farmer on the Spicher homestead above Earlystown, was a caller Monday morning. He is making an effort to improve the farm by the use of lime, and no doubt will succeed.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Bible, of Altoona, are making use of the vacation granted Mr. Bible, who for three years has been employed as assistant manager in the Globe & Company store at Altoona, by visiting at the homes of their parents at Centre Hill and Red Mill.

Work has begun last week by the members of St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal church on their new edifice, which will be erected at the corner of Foster avenue and Frazier street, State College. As soon as the excavation is completed the masonry work will be started.

D. A. Dietrich, of Walker township, Democratic candidate for recorder, was through this section of Penns Valley last week, looking up Democratic voters. Mr. Dietrich is a school teacher, and after the school term is over he gets down to real labor, of which he is not afraid.

A new Ford touring car was run into Centre Hall on Friday by the firm of H. C. Breon & Co., of Millheim, the same having been purchased by D. A. Boozer. It is a handsome car, as all the Fords are. Two Ford Torpedo runabouts were also sent to State College by this Millheim firm to Messrs. Snyder & Holmes, local agents.

If plowing makes you tired, Mr. Farmer, try a Syracuse riding plow. It will do the work while you rest and you will be ready to do other farm work after the plowing is done. The Syracuse plows better than any other riding or hand plow made. You will believe this after you give the Syracuse a fair trial.—J. H. and S. E. Weber, Centre Hall and Oak Hall.

A new comer among the farmers in the North precinct of Potter township is John Delaney, who lives on the Spayd farm, at Earlystown. He is counted a progressive farmer, always up with his work and performs his field work in the most approved ways. The large corn field, clean of weeds and grasses, evenly set with vigorous stalks, west of his house, is a good sample of his work.

From this item, which appeared in the State College Times, one is led to believe that the women have much to do with the improvements being made in the borough of State College. Read it for yourself and judge: Mrs. James Lytle is building a large house on West College avenue, the estimated cost of which is $10,000, for the Sigma Nus; Mrs. Wm Foster, of Lewisburg, is building one for the Ecclesia fraternity and Mrs Susan Garis one for the Sigma Rho's.

Isaiah Zimmerman, of Jefferson county, Kansas, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Bertha, is in the east and while here is visiting his brother, County Commissioner, H. E. Zimmerman. This is Mr. Zimmerman's third or fourth trip to the east since having gone west thirty-three years ago. He thinks Kansas an ideal state and reports that a large wheat crop is expected in his section, while corn is not so good, having been considerably damaged by the lack of rain.

The vacation season is now at its height. Nearly every train takes a number of townspeople away, some bound for the lakes and others for the seashore. What is equally noticeable is the fact that the same trains unload at our doors a corresponding number of vacationists, who during the next couple weeks will spend some time in Centre Hall. Among the latter are many familiar faces, those who are trying their fortunes in the great cities and who are utilizing the vacation period to visit the home and friends of former years.

The Mifflinburg Telegraph contained this local: Mrs. William Musser and charming and talented daughter, Miss Margaret, of Millheim, spent a few days pleasantly last week at the beautiful and modern home of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Romig, on Romig avenue. Miss Musser delighted the audience at the Lyric Theater on several occasions, by her efficient renditions of vocal solos. Her reputation in this place is well established, having sang here on several previous occasions. Her strong, sweet and wonderful range of voice is certainly marvelous, and a great future in the musical world is predicted for her by her Mifflinburg and other friends who have the pleasure of hearing her sing.

FENNEL.

It Is to the Italians Somewhat as Celery Is to Us.

"'Tisn't often that an Italian table d'hote furnishes anything that takes me back to my grandmother's time," said a New York man, "but that was my experience last night. The first nibble of something I'd supposed was celery sent my mind wandering back fifty years to an old New England village.

"'Fennel?' I asked the Italian waiter. He nodded and smiled and gave me the Italian form of the word, which I carefully wrote down on a scrap of paper, 'Fennocchi.' I suppose it showed my ignorance, but never before did I know that fennel is to the Italians what celery is to us. Evidently the large bases of the leafstalks are bleached in similar fashion, and from the way it was served I could see it was intended to be dipped in salt, as we eat celery. My obliging waiter told me that it was delicious as a salad and when boiled and served with cream sauce it made a popular Italian dish.

"But after all what did those culinary details matter? What really counted was that strange, penetrating flavor which took me back to my childhood. As I thoughtfully nibbled my fennel stalks the last fifty years seemed a blank. I was a child again, picking big clusters of yellow, aromatic fennel seeds in my grandmather's garden."—New York Sun.

AFRICAN WITCH DOCTORS.

They Make Themselves, Like Their Idols, as Hideous as Possible.

The most important period of the young African's life is that between youth and manhood (or womanhood). It is then that the witch doctor is extremely busy with his various mysterious rites. It is an important part of his calling to be hideous, as in most cases he undoubtedly is. A ridiculous mask covers his head, and wildcat or other skins are hung around his loins. Pigment of various colors is plentifully daubed over his body, and in this hideous state it is not to be wondered at that he strikes terror into the maidens' hearts as he dances wildly in the dim firelight, glaring at them with fiendish eyes. The timid young creatures are like the hare which trembles as the hovering bird of prey flutters over its head. Self will is crushed, and the erstwhile playful, willful child is transformed in most cases into a frightened creature, with, for the time being, no will of her own. It is a curious thing that nothing connected with what one may call the spiritual side of the blacks' life is ever beautiful. Their carved figures are always, to say the least, grotesque and calculated to frighten rather than comfort the bereaved.—Wide World Magazine.

Twenty Volume Novels.

The longest novels of today are pygmies compared with those published in the seventeenth century. Mlle. de Scudery's "Le Grand Cyrus" ran into ten volumes, its publication being spread over five years. And when it was translated, or, to quote the title page, "Englished by a Person of Honour," it appeared in five folio volumes of some 500 pages apiece. Another novelist of the same period, La Calprenede, was even more diffuse, one of his works, "Cleopatre," extending over twenty-three volumes. These novels found plenty of readers despite their enormous length. The Paris publisher of "Le Grand Cyrus" made 100,000 crowns by the first edition alone. Nearly all the works of Scudery and Calprenede were translated into English as soon as they appeared and many of them into German as well.—London Chronicle.

A Historic Spot.

Linlithgow palace, on the shore of the beautiful sheet of water of that name in Scotland, is somewhat square and heavy looking. Linlithgow was the birthplace of Mary, queen of Scots; in Linlithgow church James IV. of Scotland was forewarned by an apparition of the coming disaster at Flodden Field; in its streets the regent Murray was shot; close by the town Edward I. had two ribs broken by his horse the night before Falkirk, and on its loch a chancellor of the exchequer, bent on economy, issued instructions that the royal swans should be kept down to a dozen.—Argonaut.

"For goodness' sake, John, how long did you boil these eggs?"

"Just as long as you told me to, my dear."

"Impossible! They're hard as bricks."

"I boiled them just twelve minutes."

"Twelve! Why, I told you that three minutes was long enough for an egg!"

"Yes, dear, but I boiled four of them."—Toledo Blade.

LETTERS FROM SUBSCRIBERS.

Reporter Subscribers' Correspondent Column—New Department.

Dear Mr. Smith:

Enclosed please find two dollars in payment for the paper from July, 1910, to July, 1912, one year in advance.

We have just gotten home this week from a three weeks' auto trip with friends,—visiting Gettysburg over the fourth, Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Philadelphia, Easton, Nazareth, Bethlehem, Allentown, and Frenchtown, New Jersey, winding up the trip with several days in Wildwood and Cape May. Barring the intense heat, the trip was otherwise perfect.

We always look forward to the arrival of the Reporter on Friday.

Very truly yours,
(Mrs) FREDA HESS HALL.
Huntingdon, Pa.

LOCALS.

First to break ground for its exposition in 1915, San Diego is making a good start. It already has $2,500,000 to spend on its big show, foreign countries will add a large amount to that.

Charles E. Stover, who since last spring has been in Berea, Ohio, and was employed in a machine shop, is in Centre Hall and will remain for a week longer. He makes his home with his brother, Olie D. Stover.

It has been definitely announced that the road leading through the Lewistown Narrows to Harrisburg will be the first to be built by the state and then, perhaps, so the road chief has been quoted as saying, the old pike across the Seven Mountains will be given attention. The building of this latter road would carry a large amount of traffic to Lewistown, thus giving this section a good outlet to the state capital.
